MATC invites prospective college students to learn about tuition-free and free ride scholarships

Individuals of all ages are encouraged to attend this Community Pop Up to learn about going to college to earn a degree, get a certificate or otherwise further their education.

On Thursday, June 29, 5-7 p.m., Milwaukee Area Technical College (MATC) is hosting its next Community Pop Up event to inform prospective MATC students and the community about how they can attend MATC for free and take advantage of other educational opportunities during the upcoming Fall 2023 semester.

MATC's Community Pop Up is for anyone thinking about going to college to earn a degree, get a certificate or otherwise further their education.

The timing for this Pop Up is aligned with upcoming application deadlines for the MATC Ellen and Joe Checota MATC Scholarship Program, the MATC Promise for new high school graduates and the MATC Promise for Adults.

Hundreds of students have benefitted from the scholarships and saved thousands of dollars in tuition costs. Some of those students and alumni will explain how MATC's free tuition opportunities have given them freedom to focus on their studies and career pursuits. In addition, they will discuss the joys of college and how to balance school and life as they navigate courses. The Pop Up is supported by Alderman Russell Stamper, II, who will encourage individuals to further their education and transform their lives by entering the workforce in southeast Wisconsin.

Interested individuals can RSVP at <https://bit.ly/3Uz-BZiI> or ask questions by emailing recruitment@matc.edu. Free food and refreshments will be provided.

An African American Father's Fear

An African American father is in a position no other father on the planet resides in or could even understand. First, they have procreated and enhanced the African American population. Second, they have brought a new life into an extremely hostile environment.

How would a "conscious" African American father deal with this situation? How would this parent who loves their child deal with the fact that they have brought this innocent being into a war zone? How would this loving parent deal with the societal norms that exclude him, but may embrace their female offspring? How does this African American father explain to his son that everyone on the planet is against him? These are thoughts unique to the experience of being an African American father.

African American children are born into a society that was founded on their race's exploitation. While the African American father is holding the newborn child for the first time, his mind is racing. How will I protect this child from being manipulated into hating themselves? How can I keep my child from the negativity that has become the norm for African American culture? Will I even be around to see this child graduate from middle school, much less high school? These are a few of the thoughts rolling through an African American father's mind right after the child's birth. Let me correct the previous statement. These are the thoughts going through a conscious African American father's mind.

An African American father may be thinking about the future while watching his son take his first steps. If this African American male is wealthy, he has few concerns about means than a less fortunate African American father. Yet, both of these men will have questions about their child's life in the USA. Money does not keep racism out of your life. These men will do all they can to raise their child to be a man yet walk the line in order to simply survive. These African American fathers know how it is to be hated because you exist. The men know how it is to be hounded or perceived as the enemy, even when they are wearing designer suits. These African American fathers will cherish the time their sons are toddlers because the racist dance will begin when they go to kindergarten.

An African American male loves his son, but there is a difference with his daughter. This does not mean African American males love their sons less, it is just what it is. An African American father's love for his daughter is special. I am not talking about the African American male who is just a sperm donor, or ignorant savage. I am talking about an African American male who is alert and on point about the issues in the USA. How does this African American father deal with the fact that one day his little girl will be out in US society dealing with white males? How does he protect her from being exploited? This is not only a fear for the lower class African American father, but the wealthy one also. The fear of having their daughter become a success as an American, but total failure as an African American. This is the same fear that conscious African American mothers have pertaining to their sons and white women.

These are just a few things that African American fathers think about. The alternative lifestyle trend in the USA is another factor that African American fathers have to be on the alert for, no matter the sex of the child. The education system that programs African Americans against themselves is another major obstacle. The lowering of morals that has affected all races in the USA is an issue that will cause an African American father's hair to grey.

When you see an African American father, remember this article. Now you know what may be going through that man's head. Crazy, ain't it?

MMABSE provides gift cards to graduating seniors at North Division

The Metropolitan Milwaukee Alliance of Black School Educators (MMABSE) provided gift cards to graduating seniors at North Division. It would have been a proud day for Keith Carrington, the late principal of North Division High School, to see his graduating seniors being honored at their banquet for their academic, athletic, and leadership achievements.

All 36 graduating seniors at North Division High School received gift cards to celebrate the students' achievements, given by MMABSE in memory of Carrington. At one of the banquet chairs was his blue North Division blazer and a photo of him, along with his assistant principal, Jason McCord, now the Assistant Principal in Charge at the high school. Assistant Principal Robin Bradford, along with other staff at North Division, arranged the banquet for the students and their families.

MMABSE gave each senior $40 in gift cards as a reminder of how proud their late principal would have been of their accomplishments and to encourage them to continue pursuing their academic and life goals.

The gift cards the seniors received at their senior banquet on May 11, 2023 can be used at a variety of local businesses. North Division's graduation was May 25, 2023.

Carrington, 48, died unexpectedly in August 2022 after having surgery. He had been principal of North Division since 2016. Previously, he worked for MPS in roles including assistant principal, special education teacher, and paraprofessional.

Born in Dallas, Carrington moved to Milwaukee in childhood with his family. He earned a bachelor's degree at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and a master's at Alverno College. He was pursuing his doctorate at the time of his death.

"He always performed his duties and responsibilities with passion and compassion," said Dr. Patricia A. Ellis, director of the MPS Department of Equity, Access, and Inclusion, and president of MMABSE. For him, being a principal was more than a career, Ellis said. It was a calling.

"He wanted all of them to aspire to greatness and achieve that greatness," Ellis said.

Carrington, an avowed "sneakerhead," could be seen walking the halls of North Division, rotating through his collection of sneakers. "The children enjoyed that personal connection," Ellis said.

Late principal Keith Carrington

He was active in MMABSE, serving as vice president from 2019 to 2022, as chairman and co-chairman of the annual Teacher of the Year Recognition Gala in 2021 and 2022, and in other capacities. He served alongside Dr. Christlyn Frederick-Stanley, who served as the MMABSE president during his tenure as vice president.

At what would be his last gala for teachers in 2022, Ellis recalled, Carrington spent the evening making sure everything was going well. "He wanted to be sure that it would be a memorable moment for the honorees," Ellis said.

"The footprints he left for us to follow will leave an everlasting impression, not only on the adults but also the students he so dearly loved," Ellis said. "He really cared about each and every individual."

Carrington's survivors include his wife, Dr. Tanzanique Carrington, principal of Morse Middle School for the Gifted and Talented.

Do black people really need to wear sunscreen?

By: Aravia Patterson

Hey, lovelies, I'm so glad you landed here! It's finally summertime, and she ain't playing no games! The heat, humidity, and air quality are about to take me out and there's no edge control that can tame my edges. After experiencing cautious joy and scary freedom during the pandemic, this is the perfect time to live and enjoy being outside-not in. While y'all are out frolicking at summer concerts, on trips, and on cruises (stay out of suspicious submarines) I hope you're also wearing sunscreen and being healthy. I know there are many misconceptions about sunscreen for those of us with more melanin. So, let's get into it!

Did you know?

1. Melanoma is the most common cancer in the United States.

2. Melanoma is the most dangerous skin cancer and caused 7,650 deaths in 2022.
3. Black people are three times more likely to be diagnosed with melanoma at a later stage than white people.

What is melanoma?

Melanoma is a cancer that begins in the melanocytes, cells that produce melanin (the pigment that gives your skin its color). Since melanoma cells still produce melanin, tumors are typically black or brown and occasionally pink, tan, or white.

It can develop anywhere on the skin, but for men, it typically starts on the chest and back, and for women on the legs. Although less common than forming on the skin, it can also form in the eyes, mouth, genitals, and the anal area.

The cause of melanoma is a combination of genetic factors, environmental factors, and excess exposure to ultraviolet (UV) radiation from the sun and tanning lamps. People with a fair complexion, blonde or red hair, blue eyes, and freckles are at increased risk of developing melanoma.

However, skin cancer does not discriminate, people of color can also develop melanoma. For people who have darker skin tones, melanoma is more likely to be on the soles of the feet, the palms of the hands, and under the nails.

So, do black people really need to wear sunscreen?

Scrolling on social media is my favorite way to avoid my responsibilities. I was on TikTok one day and saw a video about Black people not needing sunscreen because our melanin is our natural protection.

Then I had a friend tell me that she uses shea butter as sunscreen at the beach (I know she was cooking like fried chicken in a cast iron skillet). It was at that point that I knew we needed to have a kitchen table talk/read.

While our melanin does offer us protection, our natural SPF is very low. Also, when thinking of our ancestors and how they didn't have sunscreen to protect them against the sun, we have to put that statement and timeframe into context.

Baby they had a real ozone layer. We are living in peak environmental disaster and need to use all the sunscreen we can. I know "Black don't crack," but if you don't wear sunscreen daily, then you'll be aging like milk.

For all my skincare gurlies, if you're working on hyperpigmentation, wearing sunscreen needs to be embedded in your routine. Dermatologists recommend using an SPF of 30 or higher that provides broad spectrum coverage with reapplication every two hours, especially if you're outdoors.

And yes, you can wear sunscreen and makeup! As much as I want us all to be outside having fun, I want us to be healthy and safe even more. Please wear your sunscreen, stay hydrated, and stay cool.

Closing

Whether you're at the beach, on a hike, or reading under a tree, you need to wear sunscreen. Melanin, in all its beautiful shades and glory, is not a fair fight against overexposure to the sun.

There are so many different types of sunscreens, so find whichever one works best for you, pack a water bottle & fruit, and your favorite shorts, and live your best life!

OUR HISTORY

AN EXPLORATION OF OUR LIVES AND LEGACIES

Let the people be heard: Should blacks celebrate the 4th of July?

Source: The Huston Defender.com

Asked to deliver remarks about the 4th of July to residents of his hometown, Rochester, NY, Frederick Douglass didn't mince words. On July 5, 1852, during that 76th anniversary of all things red, white and blue, Douglass made plain his answer to the question, "Should blacks celebrate America's independence," saying:

"What, to the American slave, is your Fourth of July? I answer: a day that reveals to him, more than all other days in the year, the gross injustice and cruelty to which he is the constant victim. To him, your celebration is a sham; your boasted liberty, an unholy license; your national greatness, swelling vanity; your sounds of rejoicing are empty and heartless; your denunciations of tyrants, brass fronted impudence; your shouts of liberty and equality, hollow mockery."

In other words, no.

However, in the 169 years since Douglass blindsided that New York crowd with hard black facts, much has changed in America.

Or has it?

In all quality-of-life indicators, blacks remain woefully at the bottom, be they health, economic or education-related. Additionally, the national wealth enjoyed by blacks has scarcely changed since 1865, the year blacks were emancipated.

In that year, blacks controlled 0.5 percent of national wealth. In 1990, that amount had only increased by 0.5 percent, to a "whopping" 1 percent.

Moreover, of the 14 GOP U.S. House members who voted against making Juneteenth a federal holiday, all have either evidenced support of white power organizations and events, supported state Confederate Memorial Days or sided with other such things that many interpret as anti-black.

Shawn D. Rochester, author of The Black Tax: The Cost of Being Black in America, laid out some harrowing numbers. First, the value of the labor stolen from enslaved blacks has been estimated to be from $24-$97 trillion.

Second, the value of four million enslaved blacks, America's most valuable commodity at the time, was $15.5 trillion in terms of wealth and $28 trillion in terms of GDP (Gross Domestic Product).

Third, the net worth (economic value) of blacks in the 21st century is roughly $1.5 trillion, or 15 times lower than when enslaved.

Rochester's point: racism and discrimination have cost blacks $70-trillion and thus created today's massive racial wealth gap, economically leaving blacks in nearly the same economic shape experienced in 1865, just 13 years after Douglass' famous speech.

Thus, the Defender asked if Douglass' position on the 4th of July question still applies.

Here's what the people said:

Black people celebrating the 4th of July is a clear and precise sign of cognitive dissonance. Who would expect Native Americans to celebrate Christopher Columbus Day? We define

our own Liberation and Independence. - Kalongi Ejike

Yes, I use it as another day to honor the ancestors and all that we have sacrificed for this country, as well as imagine/conjure/manifest what we want this country to be. Plus, family. Always celebrate family. - Monica Evans Antonio

How does one celebrate 4th of July? Will I take the day off? Heck yeah. Will I spend time with family and friends? Probably. Will I unapologetically worship this country? No. - Nile Dixon

Nah, I'm good. Once I began the journey of truth-confirming, I stopped celebrating many things. - Dorothy Sunshine Gonzales Jones

I don't pledge allegiance or stand up for the national anthem. Therefore, I do not celebrate the Fourth of July other than the reason that it is my birth date. - Thomas Flood

Hmmm a great question! Isn't this particularly why Jehovah's Witnesses do not observe national and nationally religious holidays? They understand the man-centered bias and manipulating that has gone into every holiday that is nationally observed in order to socially control society. So every Christian should ask this question over every nationally observed holiday and make sure that they are celebrating the good in it or the good that CAN be in it, if there is any good that can be celebrated in a national holiday. I can see the black community celebrating July 4th if they are celebrating the idealism of America, of freedom and equality, even though as we know that freedom and equality was only for certain kinds of people and for worldly reasons. If a reconciliation of understanding was made with American politics and institutions then I can see a progressive view of July 4th being celebrated. But the understanding of the perspective of why what needs to be made clear and public by the reconciling black and white communities that are choosing to participate. And education and national understanding of black history untold needs to be elevated and supported in this as well. No more rewriting or hushing history and making us all just love "America" as envisioned by white society only. - Howard Lee Thomas III

Hell no! - Tendai Fudail

I don't think "black" folks should subscribe to or participate in any facet of American society until comprehensive reform that amounts to "equity" occurs in America. That requires us to be self-determined. A people that are dependent on an oppressive system don't have a damned thing to celebrate except birthdays. - Sentwali Olushola

I think we may, the 4th has always been more about family getting together than anything else. With COVID and other things that have been going on, we will more than likely be celebrating each other on the 4th. - Abayomi Allen

We've never celebrated the 4th, but since everybody was off work it was a good time for family reunion. - Norma Thomas

Last year, our nephew suggested we exchange July 4 with Juneteenth. Some of us celebrated Juneteenth, and I believe more of our family will next year. We will do July 4 this year. If the Lord blesses and spares me, I might stop celebrating July 4 and Thanksgiving. Still, I think Juneteenth and the Fourth both can be celebrated as long as we know how tenuous our freedom is. - Trinidad Baptiste

No. Not my independence. - Lieza Smith

I enjoy the day off, however I don't celebrate the country being "free from tyranny" all the while "Merica" was getting free labor off the whipped backs of my ancestors. - Claudell Cannady

I don't celebrate the 4th but I will take advantage of the chance to fellowship with family and friends.

- Zuberi Robert Woods

I'm with Frederick Douglass on the 5th of July.

- Dr. Kefentse Chike

Not Black, but I haven't celebrated it in many years & won't ever again. What's to celebrate when what it supposedly represents doesn't exist & never has? - PN Kellz

My family has never celebrated 7/4; though we were well versed with Frederick Douglass' speech at a young age. Over time, however, I have allowed that our people accept any opportunity for a summer gathering (aka cookout) with family, friends and church family, and I'll be there!!! - Dr. Imani Karega

Since Juneteenth, I don't feel the need. Even though my participation in the holiday dwindled over the years, it's no longer relevant to me. I've been thinking that maybe "we" should boycott it all together, and do nothing. This economy runs off our dollars almost exclusively in some industry's. If anything It's just another day to meet up with family and bbq. - Ali'Olu David Zaid

Yes. In this day and age where there are so many negatives, any day that allows for a release and a collective sigh are more than welcome. We always enjoy the time with friends alongside the time to relax and welcome any moments to dance, rest, smile and recharge Because the fight begins again on the very next day. - Kamau Mason

We will enjoy the day but not the reason. Black people celebrating the 4th of July is like bugs celebrating Raid. - Charles Sadi-ki A. Brown

So, celebrate my daughter's birthday instead. - Cynthia D. Stephens
