Christ The King Baptist Church marked its 40th Founders Celebration with a series of memorable events, including a Black-Tie Gala and Pastoral Retirement on Friday, July 18, 2025, and a Farewell Service for Pastor John W. McVicker, Sr., on Sunday, July 20.

The Black-Tie Gala, held at Discovery World in Milwaukee, saw an impressive turnout of nearly 550 attendees from both within and outside of Milwaukee. The event was a grand celebration of the church's rich history and its impact on the community.

On Sunday, July 20, 2025 the sanctuary of the church was filled beyond capacity as congregants gathered for Pastor McVicker Farewell Service. Pastor McVicker, who has served the church faithfully for 40 years, delivered a heartfelt sermon titled "A Legacy of Faithfulness," based on John 10:41 CEV. In his message, he reflected on his tenure and always strived to be clear saying, "Jesus is Lord, not me" and "Like John's ministry, I didn't perform any miracles, but everything I said about Jesus is true."

Pastor McVicker and his wife, Marilynn, have relocated to Georgia to be with their daughter and grandchildren. The congregation expressed their deep gratitude and love for them, celebrating their legacy and profound impact on their lives. Like their theme, they were "Faithful to the Finish."

Gilbert Brown's 15th Annual Milwaukee All-Pro Football Camp

On Tuesday, July 8 - Thursday, July 10, 2025, Gilbert Brown's All-Pro Camp returned to Milwaukee after a five-year hiatus, offering local youth free football instruction from the Packers legend himself. The three-day camp at Bradley Tech High School was open to both boys and girls, providing valuable athletic training at no cost to participants. Princeton Zion Sellers, one of the young athletes attending the camp, expressed his enthusiasm for the program. "It was really inspirational," Sellers added. "I enjoyed that they had the chief come here. You know, it really puts a spark in my heart."

The camp has attracted all types of participants, though some attendees hope to see even more diversity in the future.

"We need more girls because I'm the only girl in the second (session) for 13 - 17-year-olds," Serenity Timm said. "I'm the only girl. I think they should come out here."

Brown emphasized that keeping the camp free is central to his mission of giving back to the community.

"It's very important because I grew up in a camp like this, and so many great players came through that camp," Brown said.

Beyond football skills, the camp focused on character development and community responsibility.

Malcolm-Jamal Warner, 'Cosby Show' actor, dies at 54 in Costa Rica drowning

Source: AP News

Malcolm-Jamal Warner, who as teenage son Theo Huxtable on “The Cosby Show” was central to a cultural phenomenon that helped define the 1980s, died at age 54 in an accidental drowning in Costa Rica, authorities there said Monday, July 21, 2025.

Costa Rica’s Judicial Investigation Department said Warner drowned Sunday, July 20, 2025 a beach on Costa Rica’s Caribbean coast. He was swimming at Playa Cocles in Limon province when a current pulled him further from shore.

“He was rescued by people on the beach,” the department’s initial report said, but first responders from Costa Rica’s Red Cross found him without vital signs and he was taken to the morgue.

Warner created many TV moments etched in the memories of Generation X children and their parents, including a pilot-episode argument with Cosby about grades and careers, and another episode where Theo tries in vain to hide his ear piercing from his dad.

Theo was the only son among four daughters in the household of Cosby’s Cliff Huxtable and Phylicia Rashad’s Clair Huxtable on the NBC sitcom, and he would be one of the prime representations of American teenage life and black boyhood on a show that was the most popular in America for much of its run from 1984 to 1992.

Warner worked for more than 40 years as an actor and director, also starring in the sitcoms “Malcolm & Eddie” and “Reed Between the Lines,” and in the medical drama “The Resident.”

His final credits came in TV guest roles, including a dramatic four-episode arc

last year on the network procedural “9-1-1,” where he played a nurse who was a long-term survivor of a terrible fire.

“I grew up with a maniacal obsession with not wanting to be one of those ‘where are they now kids,’” Warner told The Associated Press in 2015. “I feel very blessed to be able to have all of these avenues of expression ... to be where I am now and finally at a place where I can let go of that worry about having a life after Cosby.”

He played Theo Huxtable for eight seasons, appearing in each of the 197 episodes of “The Cosby Show” and earning an Emmy nomination for supporting actor in a comedy in 1986.

Actor Viola Davis was among those paying tribute Monday.

“Theo was OUR son, OUR brother, OUR friend. He was absolutely so familiar, and we rejoiced at how TV got it right!”, The Oscar winner said on Instagram. “But Malcolm got it right ... we reveled in your life and are gutted by this loss.”

The Cosby legacy

Like the rest of the “Cosby Show” cast, Warner had to contend with the sexual assault allegations against its titular star, whose conviction in a Pennsylvania court was later overturned.

Warner told the Associated Press in 2015 that the show’s legacy was “tarnished.”

“My biggest concern is when it comes to images of people of color on television and film,” Warner said. “We’ve always had ‘The Cosby Show’ to hold up against that. And the fact that we no longer have that, that’s the thing that saddens me the most because in a few generations the Huxtables will have been just a fairy tale.”

Representatives for Cosby declined immediate comment.

Life after Theo

Warner’s first major post-“Cosby” role came on the sitcom “Malcolm & Eddie,” co-starring with comedian Eddie Griffin in the popular series on the former UPN (now CW) network from 1996 to 2000.

“My heart is heavy right now,” Griffin said on Instagram Monday. “Rest easy my brother for you have won in life and now you have won forever eternal bliss.”

In the 2010s, he starred opposite Tracee Ellis Ross as a family-blending couple for two seasons on the BET sitcom “Reed Between the Lines.” He also had a role as O.J. Simpson’s friend Al Cowlings on “American Crime Story” and was a series regular on Fox’s “The Resi-

“First I met you as Theo with the rest of the world then you were my first TV husband,” Ross said on Instagram. “My heart is so so sad. What an actor and friend you were: warm, gentle, present, kind, thoughtful, deep, funny, elegant.”

Warner’s film roles included the 2008 rom-com “Fool’s Gold” with Matthew McConaughey and Kate Hudson. A poet and a musician, Warner was a Grammy winner, for best traditional R&B performance, and was nominated for best spoken word poetry album for “Hiding in Plain View.”

Warner also worked as a director on episodes of “Malcolm & Eddie,” “Reed Between the Lines,” “The Resident” and “All That.”

An actor’s childhood

Warner, named after Malcolm X and jazz pianist Ahmad Jamal, was born in 1970 in Jersey City, NJ. His mother, Pamela Warner, served as his manager when he began pursuing acting at age 9.

In the early 1980s, he made guest appearances on the TV shows “Matt Houston” — his first credit — and “Fame.”

Warner was 13 when he landed the role of Theo in an audition after a broad search for the right child actor.

Cosby was a major star at the time, and the show was certain to be widely seen, but few could’ve predicted the huge phenomenon it would become.

For many the lasting image of Theo, and of Warner, is of him wearing a badly botched mock designer shirt sewed by his sister Denise, played by Lisa Bonet. The “Gordon Gartrell” shirt later became a memeable image: Anthony Mackie wore one on “The Tonight Show” with Jimmy Fallon and the profile picture on Warner’s Instagram shows a toddler sporting one.

Warner would develop a love-hate relationship with the character.

“Theo was very good to me. And I think that show and that role are timeless. And I’m very proud of that role,” Warner said in a recent podcast interview, while noting that he’d tried to separate himself from the role and for years would recoil when fans addressed him as Theo.

“Part of the distancing for me is not wanting to see how much of Malcolm is in Theo. I remember doing the show and I always thought that Theo was corny. I want Theo to be cooler,” he told Melissa Ford on her “Hot & Bothered” podcast. “Somebody called me America’s favorite white black boy. And I was 15. ... It hurt me. ... That’s cultural trauma.”

Warner was married with a young daughter, but chose to not publicly disclose their names. His representatives declined immediate comment on Warners’ death.

Our Community Voices

Remembering Jerrel Jones, a force in Wisconsin black journalism

By William Gooden

While some called Jerrel W. Jones, founder and CEO of Courier Communication, a pioneer in Wisconsin black media, it would be more appropriate to have called him a force in black journalism. Jones was the son of Dr. Mary Ellen Strong, who owned the Milwaukee Defender Weekly Newspaper the only newspaper “of and by” the African American community during her time. His mother was the one who he often credited for his interest in print media, his dedication to journalism and his passion for community advocacy.

Jones became aware of how often the majority mainstream media could become clouded in ignorance, both willfully and as a matter of policy. He noticed how often black people were the subject of scrutiny in news media, while rarely being the commentators. “We are the news. We are everywhere, in everything. We need to be the ones to tell our stories,” he said in an interview. In 1964, Jones set out to create a platform for underrepresented voices and to serve the African American community in Milwaukee; thus The Milwaukee Courier was born. The Courier is the oldest continuously publishing black newspaper in Wisconsin and has been a force in politics, culture and community since its first edition. Jones gave it the slogan “the newspaper you can trust” and it was a key source of information and commentary for Milwaukee’s African American community.

Jones and the Milwaukee Courier made more than just waves here in Milwaukee; he became known nationally as well. Among the members of the National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) Jones along with the late William ‘Bill’ Lee of Sacramento, CA and Crusader Newspaper Group Publisher (Chicago, IL and Gary, IN) Dorothy R. Leavell were known as the ‘Young Turks’ when they became active members of the NNPA in the late 1960s.

Together Jones, Lee and Leavell made significant changes in the newspaper industry, becoming officeholders in NNPA and joining an older and influential board of directors.

In 1972, Jones further expanded his media influence by launching WNOV 860 AM, with Jones as the majority stakeholder, making it the first black-owned radio station in Wisconsin and one of 30 in the United States. The purchase of WNOV 860 AM also made him the first black man in the United States to concurrently own a radio station and newspaper. The WNOV 860 AM radio station has stood as a cornerstone of talk radio in Milwaukee, offering listeners an engaging and diverse space to discuss the important issues of the day. Additionally, the station served as a destination for music enthusiasts, providing them with a rich programming lineup that celebrates the best in R&B, traditional blues, reggae, gospel and jazz. He would later add 106.5 FM and in 2013, The Madison Times, a black newspaper in Wisconsin’s capital to reach a broader audience and round out his communications empire.

Over the years, Jones would go on to hold ownership of several enterprises. As a business leader and local media mogul he would become a pivotal player in politics. Candidates and elected officials, locally and nationally, frequented his northside office and held court with WNOV talk show hosts over the years. Jones held politicians to account, including those whose campaigns he helped support financially. He even launched a successful recall effort against a state senator he previously supported when he voted against the expansion of gambling in the state, specifically the expansion of the Potawatomi Casino.

While Jones was always modest about his legacy, there was one thing that disappointed him about his success. In order to achieve his accomplishments, he had to leave college before graduation to manage his flourishing and expanding enterprises. For many years he thought that his college degree was out of reach. However, that changed in 2022, when Jones was the recipient of a honorary doctor of humane letters degree from Cardinal Stritch University.

“My father valued education and believed in its power to change your circumstances. It is why he worked so hard to keep the community engaged and informed,” said Mary Ellen Jones, General Manager of WNOV and Jones’ daughter.

In 2024 Jones celebrated 60 years as head of Courier Communications and as a voice and activist in Milwaukee’s black community. Unfortunately, his was a voice that was lost to us on June 4, 2025 when he passed away at age 84. Though gone Jones will forever be remembered as a vital force for change and progression in our community. It will be a force that will live on though his family, employees and those in the community whose lives he affected. His will be a force that will be felt for years to come.

Fighting the stigma of overdose with International Overdose Awareness Day

International Overdose Awareness Day is observed every August 31, a day set aside to remember those we've lost to drug overdoses, uplift survivors of overdose, and to encourage action to prevent more deaths. For the black community, this day highlights deeper issues of unequal treatment, stigma, and the urgent need for better care.

In the past, drug use in black communities was mostly treated as a crime or personal weakness, leading to many arrests and people being dismissed by the community instead of receiving help and support. Today, with the ongoing overdose crisis made worse by drugs like fentanyl and xylazine, we can clearly see the impact of years of neglect and unfair treatment. Recent information from the National Institutes of Health shows overdose deaths increasing faster among Black men ages 31-47.

Let's address the stigma

To end this trend, we must first address the stigma. We need safe places to talk openly about drug use. Education and prevention should include discussions on the role of trauma, racism, economic stress, and mental health—all of which influence drug use and addiction.

Harm reduction strategies, which have been proven effective, often lack funding and support in black communities. While we are fortunate to have community collaborations such as the Milwaukee Community Collective that leverage resources to provide naloxone (a medication that reverses overdoses), safe-use supplies, and peer support on both the north and south sides of our city, we must find a way to promote and provide additional funding for these efforts to be expanded.

On International Overdose Awareness Day, let's not only remember those we've lost, but also commit to act. We need policies and resources that are fair and compassionate. By understanding and addressing the specific challenges faced by the black community, we can move toward healing.

Let's honor those we've lost by working to remove the barriers causing suffering and isolation. Every life matters, every story matters, and together, we can turn awareness into lasting change. We invite you to recognize this day in your own way and join and support the activities or events that can be found at risedrugfreemke.org.
