Young Minds, Bold Ideas: Greater Milwaukee Urban League launches first AI summer camp

Photos by Yvonne Kemp

The Greater Milwaukee Urban League celebrated its first-ever AI Summer Camp with a Capstone Presentation event on Thursday, July 16, 2026 at the Neighborhood Room at ThriveOn King, where student scholars showed the community that technology was never really the point — they were.

Over three weeks, students used AI as a tool to tackle real issues in their own neighborhoods — from affordable housing and food insecurity to youth mental health, community violence, and drug use — building capstone platforms like Housing Navigator, Safer Streets, Beyond the Corner, and Education Forward, among others.

"It's inspiring to see these students draw on their own perspectives and lived experiences to create real change right here in Milwaukee," said Dr. Eve M. Hall, President/CEO of the Greater Milwaukee Urban League. "This is exactly what mentoring the next generation of leaders looks like — and it's how we build healthier, stronger communities."

The afternoon featured a program overview from Brandon Jackson, Founder/CEO of Unorthodox Solutions and the program's creator and lead facilitator, student booths where guests connected directly with the young innovators, and a certificate ceremony recognizing every AI Bootcamp scholar. Each graduate also received a laptop computer to continue building on what they learned.

One more AI Summer Camp cohort is set to run later this summer, continuing the Urban League's push to equip Milwaukee youth with both technical skills and a community-first mindset.

The program was made possible through partners Unorthodox Solutions, Nouvelle Marketing, and i.c.stars, along with sponsors AT&T, Enterprise Mobility, Rockwell Automation, and Wisconsin Economic Development.

Voters split as David Crowley re-enters Wisconsin Democratic governor's race with Tony Evers endorsement

Milwaukee County Executive David Crowley is back in the Democratic primary for governor, backed by outgoing Gov. Tony Evers, with just over three weeks until the primary.

Milwaukee County Executive David Crowley re-entered the Democratic primary race for Wisconsin governor Saturday, less than two weeks after dropping out, this time with the endorsement of outgoing Gov. Tony Evers.

Crowley made the announcement before a packed room of supporters in Milwaukee.

"I am re-entering this race to be the next democratic governor," Crowley said.

Crowley's return comes after Lt. Gov. Sara Rodriguez's campaign fell apart in the last week following campaign finance reporting issues. Rodriguez, who Crowley endorsed when he dropped out, blamed her campaign manager before dropping out yesterday.

Evers posted his endorsement of Crowley on X after staying neutral for much of the campaign. Crowley said the governor's support reflects his record.

"At the end of the day, I think that Governor Evers has seen the work that I've done and the fact that I have not only governed here in Milwaukee county, but we've been able to build coalitions," Crowley said.

Crowley supporters were energized by his return. Marvin Walker, a Crowley supporter, said the stakes are too high to stay on the sidelines.

"I feel good, we need to win this election come November, we can not afford to have things go the way they are. We need a change of leadership, we need new blood, and more importantly, we need new ideas," Walker said.

Not everyone was enthusiastic. Braeden Hughes, a supporter of candidate Francesca Hong, expressed concern about a crowded field.

"It's a little bit disappointing to see so much division and I'm worried that there's too many candidates and that that's going to divide the vote," Hughes said.

Money is another challenge for Crowley's revived campaign. He said his campaign had roughly $300,000 to $315,000 cash on hand when it was suspended, but acknowledged there is work to do.

"We're going to continue to do fundraising, we suspended our campaign we had about, $300,000, $315,000 cash on hand, but we're going to continue to fundraise and we are building the momentum when it comes down to having enough resources to win this election," Crowley said.

Other candidates are also responding to Crowley's return. Hong welcomed him back to the race, writing, "Competition is good for democracy."

With just over three weeks until the primary, the reversal is already reshaping the Democratic field.

Yes, you can still vote by absentee ballot

On July 9, 2026, the Commission unanimously approved the publication of guidance for voters to help them understand when, where, and how to return an absentee ballot. The attached guidance will be made available to media and posted on the Commission website. Clerks may wish to use the guidance in their own materials for voters or to help train staff. No action is required of clerks.

Questions regarding the attached absentee ballot return guidance can be directed to elections@wi.gov or 608261-2028.

Absentee ballot return : best practices

In Wisconsin, any voter can choose to cast their ballot one of three ways:

- At their polling location on Election Day
- Absentee ballot returned: (1) by mail, (2) by delivery to a clerk's office, or (3) depositing in a drop box
- In-person absentee ballot (sometimes called early voting) at an officially designated site beginning two weeks before Election Day

1. Voting Absentee Do I need a reason to vote absentee?

No, you do not need a reason or excuse to vote by absentee ballot in Wisconsin. Any Wisconsin voter who wishes to vote absentee may do so by submitting a request as described below.

How do I vote absentee?

There are three ways to request an absentee ballot.

1. Online. In just a few simple steps, you can officially request your absentee ballot online at MyVote.wi.gov, which will generate an email notification to your municipal clerk.

2. By Mail. If you are a registered Wisconsin voter, you can download the Application For Absentee Ballot. Then, fill out the form and mail it to your municipal clerk's office. With few exceptions (e.g., you are indefinitely confined, live permanently overseas), you must also include a copy of your acceptable photo ID with your absentee ballot request. Information on the Photo ID needed to vote in Wisconsin is available at BringIt.wi.gov.

3. By Email or Fax. You can also request an absentee ballot by carefully composing and sending an email or fax to your municipal clerk that includes:

- Your full name;
- Voting address;
- Mailing address;
- The election in which you are voting;
- A copy of your photo ID (if you have not provided it with a previous absentee ballot request).

Your clerk must receive your absentee ballot request no later than 5 p.m. on the Thursday before Election Day. However, we recommend making this request as soon as possible, so you have time to receive, complete, and return your ballot to be counted.

Note: Before your clerk can send you an absentee ballot, you must be registered to vote. Find out if you're registered at MyVote.WI.gov. Select "Register to vote," and enter your name and date of birth.

2. Returning an Absentee Ballot

There are three ways to return your absentee ballot:

- By Mail
- Using a drop box
- Directly to your clerk's office

When should I return my completed absentee ballot by mail?

Mail transit times vary. Do not delay returning your completed absentee ballot. If a mailed ballot arrives after 8 p.m. on Election Day, it will not be counted.¹

The Wisconsin Elections Commission recommends putting your ballot in the mail at least 10 days before Election Day to ensure it is received in time. Voters who are out-of-state may need more time to ensure timely return. If you return your absentee ballot through the mail the week before Election Day, there is a significant risk that your ballot may not be received and counted.

Your returned ballot must be sent to your city, village, or town clerk. This means:

- Do not mail or deliver the ballot to your county clerk.
- Do not mail or deliver the ballot to the Wisconsin Elections Commission.
- Do not mail or deliver the ballot to the Wisconsin Secretary of State.

- Do not mail or deliver the ballot to the courthouse. The clerk of court is not your municipal clerk.

Concerned your ballot will not arrive on-time through the mail?

You can also hand-deliver your absentee ballot directly to your municipal clerk. On Election Day, you may hand-deliver your absentee ballot to your polling place or central counting facility (if applicable).² Or, if your clerk has established drop boxes for absentee ballot return, you may return the ballot using a drop box.

Absentee ballot

NOTE: You cannot return someone else's ballot unless you are assisting a voter with a disability.

When should I return my completed absentee ballot by drop box?

When a drop box is available for use is determined by each municipality. Some municipalities allow the drop boxes to be used on Election Day and some do not. Those available on Election Day usually have a time cut-off after which the drop box cannot be used. It is recommended that a voter only use a drop box prior to Election Day. If on Election Day, contact your clerk to determine if a drop box is available.

When should I return my completed absentee ballot directly to my clerk?

You may return your absentee ballot directly to your clerk prior to Election Day. If you are concerned your absentee ballot will not arrive by Election Day, you must deliver your absentee ballot to your clerk. On Election Day, you must return your ballot to your polling place or central counting facility (if applicable).²

3. Checking on Your Ballot Has my ballot arrived on time?

First, check your absentee ballot status online at MyVote.wi.gov by selecting "Track My Ballot". If the website does not show your ballot returned, you can also call your municipal clerk.

If I received an absentee ballot, but did not return it, can I still vote at the polls on Election Day?

Yes. As long as you do not return your absentee ballot, you can still vote at the polls. Once an absentee ballot has been returned to the municipal clerk, it cannot be spoiled and reissued for any reason.

If I returned my completed ballot in the mail, can I change my mind and vote in person on Election Day?

No.
If you return your ballot in the mail, you cannot vote in person on Election Day, even if the absentee ballot has not arrived.

What if I am a military or overseas voter?

The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP) provides detailed recommendations for absent military and overseas voters.

- Military voters at sea or at overseas facilities without access to the military postal system should return their ballot at least 35 calendar days before the election.

- Military voters with access to the military postal system and civilian voters overseas should return their ballot at least 30 calendar days before the election.
- Stateside (CONUS) military voters and eligible family members should return their ballot at least 11 calendar days before the election.

In all cases, FVAP recommends that military and overseas voters complete and return the ballot as soon as it is received.

¹In Wisconsin, it does not matter when your ballot is postmarked. Some other states use the postmark to determine if a ballot can be counted. Wisconsin does not use the postmark. In Wisconsin, absentee ballots must arrive before polls close on Election Day to be counted.

²Most Wisconsin cities, villages, and towns count absentee ballots at the polling place. Some jurisdictions (mostly larger cities) count absentee ballots at a central counting facility. Contact your municipal clerk to determine where your ballot will be counted.

Milwaukee honors Hank Aaron’s legacy with new mural, Hank Aaron Day Proclamation

On Monday, July 20, 2026, fifty years after Hank Aaron hit his historic 755th, on July 20, 1976, and final career home run in Milwaukee, community leaders, Brewers officials and Aaron’s family gathered Monday to unveil a new mural celebrating his lasting impact on baseball and the city.

The mural, located at the Clinton Rose Senior Center at 3045 N. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Drive, commemorates Aaron’s record-breaking achievement while recognizing his legacy of perseverance, leadership and service beyond the game.

On hand at the celebration was Commissioner Emeritus Bud Selig reflecting on Aaron’s impact both on and off the field; the late Hank Aaron’s wife Billye Aaron; mural artist Gerald “Moolah Bred” Williamson Jr.; and Milwaukee Mayor Cavalier Johnson who proclaimed Monday, July 20, 2026, to be, "Henry Lewis, Hank Aaron Day throughout the City of Milwaukee." Henry “Hank” Aaron died in 2021 and held that home run record for more than 30 years.

DRUG FREE MKE

Uniting to heal amid overdose loss

Empathy, love, support, and empowerment are essential as our community copes with the devastating impact of drug overdoses. The grieving process can be overwhelming, often leading to feelings of despair, anger, confusion, and loneliness. Those who lose loved ones may find it difficult to cope and may feel isolated in their pain. It is vital for us, as a community, to unite and acknowledge these emotions and offer each other the support we need. By encouraging open dialogue, sharing resources, and creating safe environments for healing, we can help individuals and families navigate their grief together. Together, we can foster hope and resilience in the face of overdose.

Milwaukee County is confronting an impactful issue with drug overdoses that touches lives across all demographics. In 2025, nearly 5,000 individuals required emergency assistance due to overdose incidents, and we lost almost 400 community members to fatal overdoses. As we move through 2026, these tragic numbers remain distressingly high, with over 1,800 people already needing help with nonfatal overdoses and at least 80 lives lost this year. These figures are not just statistics—they reflect the faces of our friends, neighbors, and family members. To make a meaningful impact, we must come together to understand this crisis better and take collective action to protect the health and safety of our community.

International Overdose Day Observed on August 31

On Monday, August 31, 2026, Milwaukee County will come together to observe the 25th anniversary of International Overdose Awareness Day, the tenth annual gathering in Milwaukee to support people impacted by overdose. The day will begin with a press conference at City Hall, where leaders will speak about the importance of acting and supporting those affected by overdose. In the evening, the RISE Drug Free MKE coalition, alongside community partners, will gather at Veterans Park and lead a Remembrance Walk to honor the loved ones we have lost. This all-ages event will include food, games, art, inspiring speakers, and a one-mile walk. To close out the day, we'll light up the Hoan Bridge in purple—a symbol of hope and remembrance for everyone in our community who has been touched by overdose.

We invite everyone in our community to come together, stand in solidarity, and support one another on this important day. Let's honor the lives lost, share our stories, and foster hope for a brighter future. Together, we can make a difference. 25 years on. You are still needed.

Alert: Diarrhea outbreak may be linked to these vegetables as cases rise across US

Wisconsin Department of Health Services reports 61 cases of Cyclospora, most linked to travel

A microscopic parasite that can trigger days—or even weeks—of severe diarrhea is sickening thousands of Americans this summer, prompting health officials to investigate one of the largest outbreaks of cyclosporiasis in recent years.

Currently Cyclospora cases are on the rise in Wisconsin, with 61 cases reported between May 1 and July 15, according to the state Department of Health Services.

ment of Health Services.

There has been one hospitalization in the state related to the outbreak. Dr. Kim Zelton, an enteric disease epidemiologist with DHS, said most of the cases in Wisconsin right now have been tied to international travel to countries where the parasite that causes the stomach illness is more common.

say lettuce and salad greens are among the foods being examined.

What is Cyclospora?

Cyclospora is a single-celled parasite that infects the small intestine. Once swallowed, it can cause inflammation that leads to prolonged gastrointestinal illness.

Unlike norovirus or the flu, Cyclospora usually doesn't spread directly from person to person because the parasite must mature in the environment before it becomes infectious. Instead, infections are typically traced back to contaminated food or drinking water.

Symptoms can take days to appear

One reason outbreaks are difficult to track is that symptoms often don't begin until about one week—and sometimes up to two weeks—after exposure.

Common symptoms include:

- Watery diarrhea
- Frequent bowel movements
- Stomach cramps
- Nausea
- Bloating
- Gas
- Loss of appetite
- Fatigue
- Weight loss
- Low-grade fever

Without treatment, symptoms can last for weeks or even more than a month, and many people experience

"In Wisconsin right now, we are currently at 11 domestically acquired infections. So a minority of the cases reported to us. And as such, we have not identified any common food item responsible for illnesses among our domestically acquired infections," said Dr. Zelton.

The illness is caused by Cyclospora cayetanensis, a parasite that spreads when people consume food or water contaminated with microscopic parasite eggs. Unlike many stomach viruses, government officials are thinking that this year's Cyclospora infections are most commonly linked to fresh produce, including leafy greens, herbs, berries, and other fruits and vegetables that are eaten raw.

As of mid-July, confirmed illnesses have been reported across 31 states, with Michigan experiencing the largest number of cases. Public health officials are still working to determine the exact source of the current outbreak, although investigators cycles of feeling better before becoming sick again.

Who is most at risk?

While anyone can become infected, some people are more likely to develop severe illness, including:

- Adults over 65
- Young children
- Pregnant women
- People with weakened immune systems
- Individuals with chronic illnesses

The greatest danger isn't usually the parasite itself—it's dehydration caused by persistent diarrhea.

How is it treated?

Doctors typically diagnose Cyclospora through specialized stool testing.

If confirmed, the infection is usually treated with the antibiotic trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole (TMP-SMX), commonly known as Bactrim. Most healthy adults recover completely after treatment, although symptoms can linger if left untreated.

How can you tell if vegetables have gone bad?

One of the challenges with Cyclospora is that contaminated produce often looks completely normal. The parasite is microscopic and cannot be seen with the naked eye.

However, you should avoid eating vegetables that show signs of spoilage, including:

- Slimy or sticky surfaces
- Dark brown or black spots
- Mold growth
- Wilted or mushy leaves
- Strong sour or unpleasant odors
- Excessive moisture inside produce bags
- Discoloration that wasn't originally present

Even if vegetables appear fresh, they can still carry harmful microorganisms, which is why proper handling is so important.

Does washing vegetables prevent outbreaks like this? Yes—but only partially.

Washing fruits and vegetables under running water helps remove dirt, bacteria, pesticides, and some parasites from the surface. However, Cyclospora can cling tightly to produce, particularly leafy greens with many folds and crevices.

Experts say washing reduces risk, but cannot guarantee that every Cyclospora organism has been removed. That's why public health officials issue recalls when contaminated products are identified.

The right way to wash fresh produce

Food safety experts recommend these steps:

1. Wash your hands first

Scrub your hands with soap and warm water for at least 20 seconds before handling produce.

2. Rinse under cool running water

Even fruits and vegetables with peels should be washed before cutting.

3. Skip the soap

Do not wash produce with dish soap, bleach, or household cleaners. These products can leave harmful residues and are not recommended for foods.

4. Rub while rinsing

Use your hands to gently rub firm produce such as cucumbers, apples, peppers, potatoes, and carrots while rinsing.

5. Use a produce brush when appropriate

For vegetables with firm skins, a clean produce brush can help remove dirt trapped on the surface.

6. Dry produce

Pat vegetables dry with a clean paper towel or cloth towel. Drying helps remove additional microorganisms loosened during washing.

7. Refrigerate promptly

Keep leafy greens and cut fruits refrigerated to reduce bacterial growth.

Protecting yourself this summer

Although health officials continue investigating the source of the outbreak, experts stress that people should not avoid fruits and vegetables altogether. Fresh produce remains an essential part of a healthy diet.

Instead, lower your risk by:

- Washing all fresh produce before eating
- Refrigerating perishables quickly
- Avoiding fruits or vegetables that appear spoiled
- Following food recall notices
- Drinking safe, clean water while traveling

Contacting your health-care provider if diarrhea lasts more than a few days or becomes severe

If you develop prolonged watery diarrhea, especially after eating fresh produce, don't assume it's a typical stomach bug. Testing and early treatment can shorten the illness and help prevent serious dehydration.
